DEFINITIONS

JPMorgan U.S. Sector Rotator TR Series X Index	The JPMorgan U.S. Sector Rotator TR Series X Index aims to participate in the best-performing U.S. sectors of the market while limiting its exposure to the market during periods of high volatility or market declines. The Index is based on a proprietary methodology from J.P.Morgan Securities LLC. The Index rebalances monthly to reflect changing market conditions by tracking the performance of a portfolio of one to five ETFs selected out of a pool of ten U.S. sector ETFs and a U.S. treasury bond ETF. The sectors represented by the U.S. sector ETFs are: consumer discretionary, consumer staples, energy, financials, healthcare, industrial, utilities, materials, technology and real estate.
S&P 500 Index	S&P 500 Index tracks the performance of 500 leading U.S. stocks and captures approximately 80% coverage of available U.S. market capitalization. It is widely regarded as the best single gauge of large-cap U.S. equities.
Annualized Volatility	The annualized standard deviation of the daily returns of the security using the closing levels of the index during the 22 index-day period preceding that day.
Beta	Measures the volatility of the Fund price relative to the volatility in the market index and can also be defined as the percent change in the price of the Fund given a 1% change in the market index. A beta below one suggests that the fund was less volatile than the market benchmark.
Sharpe Ratio	Measures the return for each unit of risk. The risk free rate is subtracted from the mean return and is divided by the standard deviation of returns.
